DEATH

Is Something None of Es Like to Think of,

Yet we know not when disease and ravages will attack us. We neglect the small things in life to grasp larger ones. We neglect our health, which is the most important factor to our comfort and happiness, and when it is gone what pleasure is left us? We feel badly, languid, sleepy, but say its all right. "I will feel better in the morning." Morning comes, but the germs of disease have heen planted; they readily take root and grow in the broken down constitution. In place of feeling better we feel more depressed and more badly than we did the previous day. Pro-crastination is the thief of time; it is also the thief of health, for by procrestination we allow our systems to become thoroughly poisoned with disease, and once thor-By experiments a very small dose of the poison clear has been found to be fatal, causing death in a few hours.
